Court order to demolish Marad flats will be accomplished, says chief secretary; Protests erupt

District Collector said the district administration will take necessary steps to rein habit the flat owners

Kochi: Chief Secretary Tom Jose said on Monday that the Supreme Court order to demolish apartment complexes at Marad will be accomplished. He made the remarks during his visit to the apartment complexes at Marad. During his visit, flat owners protested against the verdict of SC. Chief secretary said that the state government is responsible to fulfill the Supreme Court verdict. District Collector said the district administration will take necessary steps to rehabilitate the flat owners.

The Government took steps to demolish the apartment buildings based on the deadline announced by the SC. The apex court had said that the chief secretary should appear in person and give report after demolishing the apartments before September 20. Chief secretary held discussions with panchayat authorities of Marad and district administration in this regard.

Meanwhile, flat owners filed a writ petition in the SC against the order to demolish the flats.

Government has given direction in this regard. However, the flat owners said they wouldn't vacate

Vivek Oberoi to star in film on Balakot air strikes

Mumbai: After portraying Prime Minister Narendra Modi in a biopic, Vivek Oberoi says he is set to present the true story of Indian Air Force's air strikes on terror camps in Balakot in a trilingual film.

Titled "Balakot - The True Story", the movie in Hindi, Tamil and Telugu will depict the true facts, story and bravery of the Indian Air Force and their quick thinking, strategic planning with a strong political willingness, the actor-producer said in a statement. The film will also include the release of Wing Commander Abhinandan Varthaman, who was in captivity in Pakistan for three days, as well as all the "speculations and presumptions as to what had actually happened", they said.

"As a proud Indian, a patriot and a member of the film fraternity, it's my duty to highlight what our armed forces are truly capable of. This film is a powerful tool to underline the achievements of brave officers like Abhinandan, who went behind enemy lines and did what makes every Indian proud of them," Oberoi said.

The makers added that they will take the help of the team who "witnessed the true events".

In February this year, Indian forces struck a Jaish-e-Mohammed camp in Balakot town of Khyber Pakhtunwa province in the aftermath of the Pulwama terror attack in which 40 CRPF personnel were killed.

Oberoi has described the Balakot airstrike as "one of the most well-planned attacks by the IAF".

"I followed everything in the news, right from the attack in Pulwama to the air strike. There was a lot that was speculated and spoken about back then; this film will put all of that to rest, once and for all. I thank the IAF for trusting us with this story and we hope to do justice to it," he said. The movie will be shot in Jammu and Kashmir, Delhi and Agra. It will go on floors end of the year. The cast and a director for the film will be announced soon.

Oberoi's last film was "PM Narendra Modi".

Future is Here!

അവനീഷ് പണിക്കർ

Climate denialists can rejoice! All that the climate change propagandists were proclaiming all these years that the future is in peril is not entirely true.

Because it is not future anymore. It is here. And now.

And what we all learnt in school about the composition of air that Carbon Dioxide makes up some tiny 0.2% - forget that. Its gone way beyond it.

The Inconvenient Truth that Al Gore spoke about, is now more than an inconvenience. Its all around us. No politics intended!

The ABC show by Sir David

Attenborough, an eye opener as always, speaks The Climate Truth. The 2018 Kerala Floods also featured in it. Those who study weather patterns can understand there is more than dams and rivers involved it is not politics it is much wider and much more important to check how population spread into every possible corners of the finite world is causing trouble for self.

The evidence is all around us.

And what we have been worrying about what the future generation will inherit.... That future generation has all grown up and is now part of us. So lets let them worry about it for the subsequent generation.

Recent rains and storm surges in Mumbai brought a lot of garbage in the waves when they lashed onto the footpaths of Marine Drive.

The 2018 floods in Kerala had also done that. Returned all that garbage gifts that humans deposited in the rivers, when the bridges acted as combs for the ravaging waters.

But is it all doom and gloom and worry?

A true champion representative of that future generation, Greta Thunberg, one of the youngest climate activist has made enough ripples around the world already that there are little Gretas everywhere now.

Similar to Rachel Carson's book on The Silent Spring caused the generation of US EPA, and other EPAs around the world, the Greta Effect is causing a boom in children's books on environment, climate and the like.

There are other little voices and hands acting for the mother planet Earth such as the seven year old Ryan Hickman who runs his own recycling business. He is eight now. He started doing this more than half his age ago.

Then there is Tim Miller, who was diagnosed with terminal illness, who decided to use his remaining time to help the community collecting the non-recycled parts of plastic waste and turning it into limbs for child amputees. Envision Hands is all about plastic bottle caps and a 3D printer, giving children and the environment some hope.

And off course, Chipper, an eight-year old rescue dog in Arizona US, who got an interest in recycling plastic waste.

There are videos making the rounds of crows/ravens and wild elephants that come around picking up trash and putting in the bin. For whatever reasons. Who says humans are the only intelligent beings?

The future could be bright. If we all chip in.

Communications from lander 'Vikram' lost: ISRO

Bengaluru: In a huge disappointment, communications from Chandrayaan-2's Vikram lander to ISRO's ground station here was lost before touchdown while the nation eagerly awaited its soft landing on the hitherto unexplored lunar south pole in the early hours of Saturday.

Addressing the scientists after the link was snapped, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said: "Nation is proud of you, be courageous."

As the powered descent of the lander began at around 1.38 am, scientists at ISRO Telemetry Tracking and Command Network (ISTRAC) here were glued to their terminals, anticipating the soft landing.

They clapped and cheered as the moon lander completed the rough braking phase before the fine braking phase started.

It was then that the scientists started becoming tense and went into a huddle. ISRO Chairman K Sivan was seen engaged in intense discussions with some scientists.

Soon he announced that the Vikram lander descent was as planned and normal performance observed upto altitude of 2.1 km.

Subsequently communications from lander to ground station was lost, he said, adding the data was being analysed. The Prime Minister said "Theyve (scientists) given their best and have always made India proud." Modi also interacted with students and answered questions.

Jose K Mani sabotaged Kottayam LS seat; PJ Joseph hints party split

Kottayam: Kerala Congress leader P.J. Joseph lashed out at Jose K. Mani. He stated that when he was supposed to contest from Kottayam Lok Sabha constituency, it was sabotaged by Jose K. Mani. "Nobody else was being considered for the seat during the candidate selection. As the Rajya Sabha seat was already given to Jose K. Mani, I expressed my interest to contest Lok Sabha polls from Kottayam seat. UDF also accepted this formula. K. M. Mani blessed me during the meeting. Later, it was sabotaged," P. J. Joseph revealed in an interview to Mathrubhumi News. "K. M. Mani later expressed grief over this incident. I withdrew from holding parallel conventions in Pala considering the request of UDF leaders. The discussions under the Bishop also failed," he said.

Jose K. Mani tried all tricks to get the two leaves election symbol. He is an immature leader who cannot take decisions on his own. He is trying to conquer power through shortcut. The issue intensified since the Kerala Yatra led by Jose K. Mani.

The announcement of a new organisational system after December indicates that Kerala Congress is almost split. After rain recedes, district presidents will be selected in all districts and separate organisational structure will come into being.

Indian Rupee - New Rules for NRIs. NRIs foreigners cant leave with rupee

MUMBAI: Thanks to a new directive from the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), from now on every non-resident Indian (NRI) and foreigner leaving the country will have to compulsorily change Indian rupees in their possession into a foreign currency before they board the flight.

It's a common practice among NRIs to carry some amount of Indian currency with them when they leave the country, mainly for the convenience of not having to exchange forex into rupee when they return the next time. But from now on, they will not be allowed to officials can act against them.

*RBI has allowed NRIs to carry up to Rs 10,000 beyond the immigration and customs desks, and to the duty-free shopping and security checking areas in the departure hall in international airports to meet miscellaneous expenses. However, this has been allowed subject to the condition that NRIs "will not be allowed to carry any Indian rupee beyond SHA and that they should dispose of Indian currency before boarding the plane",* an RBI notification said.

carry any Indian notes with them.

Although the rule, which is part of Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA), has been in place for quite sometime now, it is only now that the central bank is trying to enforce it.

On Monday, RBI allowed forex changers to open kiosks beyond the immigration desks at international airports to facilitate NRIs and foreigners opting to exchange rupee for other currencies before they enter the aircraft. According to RBI officials, in case these travellers have Indian currency notes in their possession before boarding the flight, Indian customs

To facilitate money changing facilities for NRIs and foreigners, foreign exchange counters have been allowed in departure halls in international airports beyond the immigration and customs desks. "Such foreign exchange counters will, however, only buy Indian rupees from non-residents and sell foreign currency to them subject to usual terms and conditions," RBI said. It has also directed authorities to put up displays at international airports, "reminding passengers that the area is the last point for non-residents to possess Indian Rupees".

Legends The story of healers

VIKAS VARRIER

Aithiyamala, the book of legends is full of stories about medical healers. Most of them are well known among Malayalis as most of the families continue practicing hereditary medicine even today. The Vayakara Moos is one such illustrated medical practitioner who was famous throughout Kerala in those days. There are several stories on how he treated seemingly complex (and some silly too) medical conditions. The Aithiyamala tells us a few.

For instance, there is this story of a person with severe bowel problems. He couldn't pass urine or stools. He consulted many acclaimed doctors and underwent many treatments, but with no positive results. He was on the verge of death when someone went to the healer and explained the problem. After hearing about the problem, the healer plucked a leaf of pumpkin and asked him to grind it along with the stalk and give it to the patient in lukewarm water.

The patient was given half of the concoction made in the prescribed manner and soon enough his bowels started emptying. However, this soon resulted in another problem as the patient started getting loose motions. The family again approached the healer who asked whether they gave the patient the whole of the concoction. Upon hearing the reply that only half of it was given, he asked them to give the rest of the potion too. They went back and did as asked. Amazingly, the loose motions stopped and soon the patient was completely cured of all his bowel problems.

Likewise, there was a fat person who was finding it increasingly difficult to carry on his daily activities because of his bulky body. It soon became difficult for him to walk even a few steps and he consulted many doctors for a relief. However, no matter what they did, his body gained more weight and fat that he lost all hopes of a cure. Then he came to know about the Moos and went to consult him.

The Moos looked at him carefully from head to toe a couple of times and said You don't need any special treatment because you will be dead in a month. In case you are alive after a month, come and see me. I shall treat you then.

The man was shocked to hear this and he fell unconscious as soon as he heard the healer's verdict. The people who accompanied him to the healer somehow managed to take the unconscious man home. As soon as he gained consciousness, he was so distraught at thought of his imminent death that he lost all appetite. He spent his time brooding over the death and lost all interest in everything, including food. He hardly ate anything a bowl of porridge or a piece of fruit when forced by his worried wife.

Within a couple of weeks, his body lost all the fat and he began to lose considerable weight. He was too dejected to think about anything and awaited his death at the end of the month. However, as the month ended, he found himself alive and a ray of hope began to rise in his mind.

He soon went back to the healer who told him he didn't need any special treatment. His problem was too much eating and too little activity. As there are no medicines to help someone get slim, he was told he would die soon. The anxiety and tension helped to get rid of his obsession with food, which in turn resulted in weight loss. So, all he had to do was eat sensibly and get plenty of exercise. If he will do that, he will never again become fat or suffer from any health problems.

Once, a woman and her family came to the Moos with a strange problem. The woman had raised her hand to take something from the top shelf and couldn't put it down afterwards. They tried everything they could, but the woman could not move or bring her hand to the normal position.

The healer asked someone to tie her free hand to a pillar and asked the husband to remove the clothing from her waist. The people assembled were taken aback by the strange instruction. How could he do it that too when so many people were around? As he stood there hesitating, the healer himself approached the woman and extended his hand to pull off the cloth from her waist. As the healer was about to rip it off her, her raised arm came down and clutched the cloth to prevent it from falling off her.

She couldn't bear the thought of being humiliated in front of the people and so, her body automatically reacted to the situation and healed her problem. She was relieved to see that her modesty was not threatened and that her hand was healed.

Thus, there are many such stories, which show us that not all problems were medical. Some were psychological and physical, which required to be treated as such. The Moos succeeded because he not only had a good knowledge of medicines, but also had an understanding of human psyche and anatomy. A highly accomplished healer, he used his medical knowledge and combined it with his knowledge of human psychology and other such relevant things to prescribe a solution. As we have seen, it could be as simple as a concoction from a leaf, or a social experiment or using fear of death to the advantage.

Sadly, in these times, even though the technology has advanced in unforeseen ways, the number of healers who with well-rounded knowledge of medicine, human behaviour and other such relevant factors are rare. So, any legendary stories of such a person are a reminder to us to approach things in a holistic manner and not in isolation. Because, whether we acknowledge it or not, everything is intertwined in some way or the other.

Indonesia sends back hundreds of shipping containers full of waste

Indonesia has sent hundreds of garbage-filled shipping containers back to their countries of origin, according to the customs agency, as the Southeast Asian nation pushes back against becoming a dumping ground for foreign trash. About 250 containers seized across the archipelago in recent months have already been returned and authorities are inspecting more than 1,000 others, a customs official said.

Among them, 49 containers of waste seized on Batam Island near Singapore have been shipped back to the United States, Germany, France, Hong Kong and Australia, said agency spokesman Deni Surjantoro.

The shipments were loaded with a combination of garbage, plastic waste and hazardous materials in violation of import rules.

"Imports can't be contaminated with toxic or dangerous materials," he said.

Nearly 200 containers have also been shipped out of Surabaya, Indonesia's second-biggest city, to the US, Britain and Germany, according to customs data.

Meanwhile, authorities near Jakarta are gearing up to send back about 150 containers while inspecting more than 1,000 others that could contain banned materials, Surjantoro said.

Indonesia has been tightening its surveillance of foreign trash in response to soaring imports. Huge quantities of waste have been redirected to Southeast Asian nations after China -- which used to receive the bulk of scrap plastic from around the world -- closed its doors to foreign refuse last year in a bid to clean up its environment. Australia has pledged to stop exporting recyclable waste amid global concerns about plastic polluting the oceans and increasing pushback from Asian nations against accepting trash. Around 300 million tonnes of plastic are produced every year, according to the conservation organisation WWF, with much of it ending up in landfills or polluting the seas, in what has become a growing international crisis.

A particular environmental concern are microplastics -- tiny pieces of degraded waste that absorb harmful chemicals and accumulate inside fish, birds and other animals.

INX-Media: Court sends Chidambaram to Tihar jail

Special Judge Ajay Kumar Kuhar sent Chidambaram to 14-day judicial custody till September 19.

New Delhi: A Delhi court Thursday sent former finance minister P Chidambaram to Tihar jail in the INX Media corruption case.

Special Judge Ajay Kumar

Tushar Mehta assured that there will be adequate security for Chidambaram in jail. With regard to Chidambaram's plea seeking to surrender in the money laundering case, the court issued notice to ED. Chidambaram, 73, Kuhar sent Chidambaram to 14-day judicial custody till September 19. The court allowed him to carry his medicines to jail.

Considering that he has Z-security, the court directed Chidambaram be kept in separate cell in the jail. Solicitor General was produced before a Delhi court on Thursday after the expiry of his 2-day CBI custody in the case. Chidambaram's 15-day CBI custody, ordered by the special court in five spells, which started after his arrest on August 21 night, ends today.
